Diplomats' removals	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Note verbal approval.</li> <li>Original Bill of Lading.</li> <li>Packing list.</li> </ul>	All household goods and personal effects are duty/tax free. Port storage is free for five days and demurrage for containerised shipments will be charged normally after ten days from vessel arrival.	Diplomats are holders of a 9(E) visa. The diplomatic agency will request for tax exemption through a note verbal letter addressed to the Department of Foreign Affairs who will in turn endorse the request to the Department of Finance. 9(E) visa holders are entitled to bring in a car duty/tax free.
Temporary Visitors, Tourists	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Original passport.</li> <li>Original Bill of Lading.</li> <li>Packing list.</li> </ul>	All household goods and personal effects are subject to a 50% rate of duty and a 10% rate of tax.	Temporary visitors/tourists are holders of a 9(a) visa and do not have any tax exemption privilege. They can only be allowed to have their shipment cleared duty/tax free if they have a pending application with a Commission on Immigration and Deportation for a change of visa status to a 9(g), 9(D), 47(a)2, 13A or E.O. 226. A bond must be posted for the conditional release of the shipment pending visa approval. The re-export bond is good for 3 months, and can be extended for another 3 months after which the bond has to be cancelled and the visa approved. The amount of the bond is computed at 150% of the amount of taxes/duties assessed, and the bond premium is normally 3% of the bond amount.
